

I and my son listen to K-Love every day. If an LPFM broadcaster was to replace K-Love, it would be a great loss to us and others who listen to the programming. I am a scout leader, and feel safe when I'm taking boys on a camping trip that they can listen to K-Love without me worrying that there may be songs on the radio that are not appropriate for their (or mine infact) ears. K-Love called me a few weeks ago to see if I needed any prayer, I was very surprised to think that a radio station would call me out of the blue to check on me. What other stations care about their listeners that way. My son loves their music, which encompasses every taste, and I love the message that's given. Not being able to listen to K-Love would be a great loss to parents of teenagers everywhere. The radio station reflects our life style and our life style reflects the radio station - we are volunteers for church, scouts, and many agencies. KEEP K-LOVE!!!!
